Reading Program

Programa De Lectura

독서 프로그램

Dear Readers,

When I was a little girl, permission to walk somewhere by myself marked a huge, longed-for milestone. It meant independence. It meant freedom. It meant the chance to explore the world. The first place I was allowed to visit alone? The local public library.

A grey stone building at the corner of a sleepy intersection, the library proved itself to be a magical place: safe enough for a young girl on her own, yet containing the promise of almost-infinite possibility. The towering fiction shelves held the weight of an endless parade of complex and vivid characters inside thrilling stories. The rows upon rows of nonfiction were best navigated through a mystifying set of tiny paper cards in long wooden boxes. Carefully penciled call numbers led me to books that helped answer my many newly emerging questions about the world and myself. Meanwhile, a randomly pulled hardcover from here and there invited me beyond the bounds of the questions I'd thought to ask, introducing me to new information and ideas that showed me how wide and wonderful the world really was. Inside the library doors, my then-shy childhood self found a vast world to wander safely at her leisure.

Thirty years later, I have added other means of exploration to my repertoire, and now I take my own toddler to the public library whenever I can, because the world of books wows me still. I have known the wonderful sensation of a writer articulating something I've always felt somewhere in my spirit, but had never been able to name before seeing it on the page. I have found, too, an invitation into deep engagement with perspectives and experiences far different from my own, challenging my assumptions about other people, and giving me not just new information but new insight. Both of these reading experiences can be a great gift, vitally needed in times such as these. This is the power of the Reading Program.

As you engage with this year's reading list, I invite you to open your mind and your heart to experiences of both profound resonance and deep difference. Learn from our authors. Stop and wonder, lingering with perspectives and experiences outside your usual go-to list. Pause and journal on what moves your soul. Read the books that seem right up your alley – and perhaps one or two that are beyond your comfort zone. Are you a regular reader of adult nonfiction? Add a YA novel to your list and see what you make of it. Are you all-in for social action? Try a bit of spiritual growth, as well. If you want to go deeper, read together, sharing this book list with a family member, friend, or colleague. You may create a formal book group or it may be something more casual – whatever works for you. Consider intergenerational options. Children and youth love the wonder of reading, and the Reading Program is proud to feature a selection of books curated for all ages. Please consider sharing some of the enclosed book selections with children and youth in your life and then talk together about what you read. Adults, youth, and children can all benefit from the experience.

Finally, as you join the Reading Program journey this year, know that we are praying for you along the way. May this Reading Program nourish your soul, strengthen your understanding, and equip each of you for the work the Spirit has placed in your heart.

Peace and blessings,

OVERVIEW

The Reading Program is a cherished United Women in Faith tradition that brings together members in mission as they explore, share, and discuss the written word.

To participate, select one of the four plans on page 4—and start reading! From captivating mysteries and heartfelt biographies to urgent messages about issues like immigration, racism, and mental healthcare, there's something for everyone.

Reading Program books are divided into five categories: Education for Mission, Leadership Development, Nurturing for Community, Social Action, and Spiritual Growth. Books are available for people of all ages and reading levels. Books that are suitable for children or youth will be listed among the five categories; look for “Suitable for children” or “Suitable for youth” following book descriptions. As you read, track your progress using the reporting form on page 26. When you complete a plan, you will be acknowledged with a Certificate of Recognition, available on page 28.

Earning your Certificate of Recognition is just one way to show what you've gained from the Reading Program. The Reading Program is not meant to be completed alone, even when social distancing. As you read, consider taking one or more of the following actions:

Take Action

- Promote the Reading Program. Share the program with United Women in Faith members and members of the community on LISTSERVs, online message boards, or on social media. Help people obtain books and distribute this guide.
- Connect with local and district groups. Start a virtual book club over Zoom, Google Hangouts, or another videoconferencing platform. Download books and present book reviews at virtual meetings, share a spreadsheet tracking progress (through Google Docs, for example), and post information in online groups.
- Pray. Books often raise concerns about people, countries, and issues. Bring these concerns to God during your prayer time.
- Advocate for tangible change. Many Reading Program books address important social issues. And many address racism.
- If you're not able to engage in demonstrations or other in-person activities, organize a remote task force to discuss ways to impact your community virtually.

Along the way, it examines the complex relationship between the United States government and the small, peaceful tribe and the legal consequences of land swaps and broken treaties, while never losing sight of the heartbreaking journey the Ponca endured. Growing up in majority-White schools and churches, Austin writes, "I had to learn what it means to love blackness," a journey that led to a lifetime spent navigating America's racial divide as a writer, speaker, and expert helping organizations practice genuine inclusion. She writes in incisive detail about her journey to self-worth and the pitfalls that kill our attempts at racial justice. Her stories bear witness to the complexity of America's social fabric—from Black neighborhoods to private schools in the middle-class suburbs, from prison walls to boardrooms at majority-White organizations.

UNTIL UNITY

REV. FRANCIS CHAN

DAVID C COOK (2021)

If unity is so important to the heart of God, why is the church one of the most divided groups on earth? New York Times bestselling author Francis Chan calls for believers and churches everywhere to align hearts with God and start taking seriously God's numerous commands to unify. While many believe doctrine is at the root of the problem, Chan argues that the real problem is the shallowness or non-existence of our love for each other—rooted in a shallowness in our understanding of the gospel. This is what desperately needs to change.

WHO CAN WE BE TOGETHER? A BIBLICAL EXPLORATION OF LUKE 13

CANDACE SIMPSON

(MISSION u ADULT STUDY)

UNITED WOMEN IN FAITH (2022)

In this Mission u Adult Study, Candace Simpson brings participants deeper into Jesus' teachings in Luke 13 to explore what it means to be in community. As Simpson notes, "For followers of Christ 2,000 years later, it's important for us to sit with the range of emotions we have in response to these words. It's not easy to build and sustain communities, especially when there are forces that drain us, exhaust us, and even push us to act uncharacteristically. And yet, we are called to act on the most ethical principles of our faith so we can witness the kingdom of God on earth."

I've really enjoyed the books in the Reading Program and have learned a lot, which is the point! Our Reading Program involvement has about doubled this past year with the start of our book group. It also has helped to have all the usable Reading Program books on one list and marked with which ones are in our own library and what is available in our public library. Thanks for all the work you put in to making it all available to us."

EDUCATION FOR MISSION

SUSAN ANGELINE COLLINS: WITH A HALLELUJAH HEART

JANIS BENNINGTON VAN BUREN

WESTBOW PRESS (2021)

Years before Mary Jane McLeod Bethune started her school for girls in Florida, one Midwestern woman was steadily doing her part for girls in the northern Angolan high plateau. For more than three decades, African American missionary Susan Angeline Collins made a tremendous difference in the lives of countless African women and children, some orphaned and homeless and others escaping early marriage and subservience. Authored by retired professor Janis Bennington Van Buren, this book explores the remarkable service-oriented life of Collins from her 1851 birth in Illinois until her 1940 death in Iowa. Collins overcame economic, education, gender, race, religious, and other obstacles surrounding Africa's colonization to serve as a stalwart missionary, leader, teacher, nurse, construction manager, and surrogate mother to "her girls."

CASTE: THE ORIGINS OF OUR DISCONTENTS

ISABEL WILKERSON [ALSO AVAILABLE IN SPANISH]

RANDOM HOUSE (2020)

In this brilliant book, Isabel Wilkerson gives us a masterful portrait of an unseen phenomenon in America as she explores, through an immersive, deeply researched narrative and stories about real people, how America today and throughout its history has been shaped by a hidden caste system. Linking the caste systems of America, India, and Nazi Germany, Wilkerson explores eight pillars that underlie caste systems across civilizations, including divine will, bloodlines, stigma, and more. Using riveting stories about people—including Martin Luther King Jr.—she shows the ways the insidious undertow of caste is experienced every day, ultimately pointing to ways America can move beyond the artificial and destructive separations of human divisions toward hope.
